Within the past few weeks as many as a half-dozen ladies have spoken of the dearth of peddling wagons and bewailed their inability to get satisfactory vegetables, melons, small fruits, or fruits of any kind, at the various grocery stores. The writer doesn't know anything about this, whether the kick is really a legitimate one, but it's a certainty that any peddler with fresh vegetables and fruits would find a liberal patronage in this city. The women have frequently protested to this office that they are tired of over-ripe and bruised tomatoes, tough beans, corn that isn't corn, musk melons that taste most like a mixture of squash and carrot, and they object to paying high prices for inferior fruit. The writer knows it is easy to kick, and it may be that the ladies are unduly exercised, but we would not like the job of convincing them. If some enterprising groceryman would start out a wagon with vegetables and fruits while they are fresh, it might prove worth while.

Yesterday at 5 p. m., at the home of Rev. S. M. Wood, that divine united Miss Lulu Newton to Oliver Brisbin in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride is a daughter of Bither Newton, of Philomath, and the groom an easterner who has been in Benton about a year. They are said to be popular young people of the Philomath vicinity, with many friends who will wish them well.

There is a strong belief here that Philomath uses more of Corvallis's mountain water than it should. Report comes from there that they use it for all sorts of purposes, up to irrigating two-acre garden spots. It is claimed that many Philomath citizens use the water lavishly, absolutely without regard to waste. The Gazette-Times has no way of knowing the exact facts in the case, and can only suggest that officials should take means to find out the truth, and remedy any awkward situation there. Philomath is entitled to all the water contracted for, but it must be remembered that Corvallis built its pipe line to serve Corvallis first.

Ringling Bros., among the keenest of all big showmen, have passed Eugene by this year on account of the big interest which is being taken in the forthcoming District Fair to be held there Sept. 7th till 12th. The Fair is being so well advertised and the prizes and premiums are of so alluring a nature that even a circus wouldn't be much of a card to divide the honors, hence the field is left clear to make the District Fair with its races and other entertainments a huge success. The counties represented in the Second Southern Oregon District are Lane, Douglas, Coos and Curry and One Thousand Eight Hundred dollars is furnished the management to be used exclusively for premiums.

Mayor Watters and Councilmen Skelton, Osburn and Johnson returned last night from a tour of investigation, in which they sought information about paving. They visited Dallas, Salem, Oregon City and Portland, but were not subject to interview to-day.

Mr. Kaupisch, the Corvallis creamery man, was out in his auto last Sunday, taking a look over the country, when about three miles south of town the machine broke down and he telephoned in to town for help. H. Hirschberg took his auto and went out and pulled him into town.—Independence Enterprise.

J. A. Gilkey and daughter Beulah leave in the morning for Seattle to spend some time with relatives and at the fair. Mr. Gilkey has a son there, and years ago he was a student at the University of Washington. He expects to meet some friends of thirty years ago. Mrs. Gilkey and other members of the family returned from the fair several days ago.

Carver and Oliver at the Palace theater last night pleased large audiences in their newskit, "Roses vs. Overalls." The motion picture program is a very good one, the film "The Necklace" being a very pathetic story and one which shows the result of coveting something beyond one's means. The rest of the films are average and Miss Spangler's song is all that could be desired. The bill will be repeated tonight.

An informal reception was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gammell at the residence of Mrs. Sarah Cauthorn Wednesday evening. Only relatives and a few immediate friends were present. After conversation and light refreshments, Mrs. Fred Buchanan and Miss Lillian Ranney furnished instrumental music. Miss Hetty Lilly favored the company with a solo. Before dispersing all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and wishing the bride and groom much happiness in their new home in Portland.

For Sale—2 acres; 5 roomed house, barn and out buildings, young orchard; for particulars call at Jack Dawson's Poultry Market. 8-18-4t

S. B. Bane has considerable pleasure these days in offering friends a sample of something that looks like buffalo chip, but which he affirms is jerked venison. The stuff tastes good and is accepted as evidence that Mr. Bane did actually get two bucks on his recent trip into the Cascades. He says the party he was with, the Catheys and Pastor Leech, went far beyond civilization and into places so steep that ascent was made only by hanging to their horses' tails. The trip was a rough one, but a life-giver and they enjoyed it to the limit.

SHOT THROUGH THE HAND TODAY

One of the Mitchells living at 544 N. Third street accidentally shot himself through the hand this afternoon. He was handling a revolver not knowing it was loaded. The ball went entirely through the hand, but the injury is not considered serious. Dr. Morris attended the case.

Blodgett Booming.

A mercantile business is being opened up at Blodgett by the new firm of Plunkett & Thompson, says the Salem Capital Journal. They have put in a new stock—a line of general merchandise—and will buy produce and ship it. Edgar Plunkett is a native of Kings valley; his father, James Plunkett, was one of the regulars of Co. D. Fourth regiment, sent from California to Fort Hoskins in the '60s—the company that rounded up the Indians on the coast and took them to the Siletz. J. A. Thompson was for the past nine years with the life saving crew on Coos bay, where he helped take the crew off the Nearconi last March, and also several other ship wrecks. He came in 1889 from Kansas and has been on the coast ever since. The firm is located permanently and has a fine country to draw trade from. They will be found accommodating young business men and will try "to grow up with the country" and expand as fast as it needs new lines of goods. They bought out J. A. Wood, who was the pioneer merchant of the place, and has become storekeeper for the C. & E. railroad supply house at Albany, Mr. Plunkett is acting station agent and the store also has a fine dance hall, and both telephone lines.
